Blasted Rock . . . Did This to House

Frank Beaumont, 3192 Highview, struggles to hold up one of four large rocks that crashed through his roof yesterday during blasting for water main excavation on summit between Tolmie Avenue and Cook Street. Workmen were blasting about 100 yards from the house and blast showered large area around Beaumont home with pieces of jagged rock.

Blast Damage Hits New Area

Residents in the North Cook Street area are the latest to come under bombardment with blasted rock.

Seven persons, including four children, escaped serious injury Wednesday afternoon when a blast showered the house in which they had taken refuge with jagged pieces of rock.

Workmen from the G. W. Ledingham construction company, which is excavating for a new water main along Tolmie Avenue and up over the summit between the end of Tolmie and Cook, warned residents in the district to take cover, as they were about to begin blasting.

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Beaumont, their two children, Ruth and David, a young playmate, Susan Derriks, and Mrs. A. Eburne and her two-year-old son all took refuge in the Beaumont home at 3192 Highview to wait out the explosion.

It had become a regular procedure for them to take refuge in the house during the recent weeks of blasting.

When the blast came it seemed much stronger than usual, and a moment later the house trembled as the shower of "shrapnel" landed on the roof, just above their heads.

The blast hurled four boulders, weighing in excess of 50 pounds each, approximately 100 yards onto the Beaumonts' roof. Small pieces of jagged rock showered the entire area and some pieces reached Mars Street, more than 150 yards away.

Four large holes were punched in the stricken house as the rocks plunged through. Fortunately for those inside, the attic floor stopped the pieces.

One big boulder struck the east eaves of the house, smashing them and carrying away the rain trough.

The children's sand box, in which the children had been playing before the warning, was covered with particles of rock, plaster and branches torn off a nearby oak tree.

A glass light shade was knocked off the ceiling in the kitchen, where the occupants had gathered, and ornaments on the kitchen walls were flung to the floor. Several glass dishes in a basement apartment were broken.

After the blast, workmen rushed down to the house to see if anyone was hurt. They couldn't understand why it had been so severe.

"They are going to blast more, and that's the big trouble," Mr. Beaumont said. "All the houses down Slater Street will be endangered."

Mrs. Beaumont remarked that the children will be going back to school in a few weeks and wondered what would happen if they were caught coming or going during a similar blast.

The blasting was done not more than 25 feet from the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Derriks, 3181 Highview, and their home was not touched.

But Mrs. Derriks complained that the constant pounding had begun to open cracks in her ceilings and walls.

Mrs. Beaumont stands where she and several children took shelter during the blast—immediately under shattered roof where large boulder crashed through. Attic floor under the roof broke the impact of the rock and saved the group from injury.

Seamen Call for Strike Vote; CPR West Coast Ships Unaffected

MONTREAL (CP)—More than 8,000 Canadian seamen, members of the Seafarers' International Union (AFL-TCU), Wednesday night called for a nationwide strike vote following rejection of what they termed an "entirely unsatisfactory" arbitration award.

Hal C. Banks, international vice-president of the union, in a statement from SIU headquarters in Montreal, said:

"The finding of the board—a ship-owners' board—is entirely unsatisfactory and our members are united in taking immediate action as provided by law to protest this unfair decision."

"The members are calling for an immediate strike vote."

The statement said reports confirming the decision of SIU's membership had been received at headquarters. They came from port agents John Newton, Victoria; Norman Cunningham, Vancouver; Edward Morin, Fort William, and from Thorold, Ont.

Toronto, Saint John, N.B. and Halifax.

Mr. Banks said the strike could start Monday and would affect most Canadian shipping.

He said ships on the West Coast operated by Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways and Union Steamships would not be affected as the union and companies have already come to terms.

He said the union and companies signed a contract several months ago, covering vessels on the West Coast and the one in the East. The companies granted $30 a month across the board and a 40-hour work week.

The main point in the union's current contract demands that the work week be reduced to 40 from 56 hours. The union says the schedule must start Monday and end Friday and work done Saturdays and Sundays would be paid for at time-and-a-half rates.

Company and union officials would not speculate immediately on what effect a walk-out would have on movements by hundreds of United States freighters and other companies.

In two majority reports, Eric G. Taylor, chairman of the conciliation board, and the companies' representative, Joseph Wedgwick, recommended a gradual reduction to the 40-hour week during the next year, contending that Saturdays and Sundays should be included in the regular schedule.

'Criminals' May Be Freed

FREEDOM VILLAGE, Korea (UPI)—The Communists apparently are getting ready to free numerous American prisoners, including officers up to the rank of colonel, who were sentenced to prison on trumped-up charges, repatriated soldiers reported Wednesday.

The "crime" prisoners are being concentrated at Kaesong, the Communist repatriation headquarters near Panmunjom.

Saskatchewan Hospital Plan Boosts Rates

REGINA (CP)—An increase in the individual adult hospital-care tax for 1954 from $10 to $15 and a boost in the family maximum tax from $30 to $40 were announced Tuesday by Health Minister J. T. Bentley.

The tax for dependents under 18 years of age will remain unchanged at $5 each.

The increases, first general boost in five years, were dictated by a "tremendous rise in the cost of providing hospital care," said Mr. Bentley. There would be no change in the benefits provided under the provincial hospital plan.

One other change announced was increase in the minimum down payment from $15 to $20, with no change in the term of six months allowed for payment of the balance of the tax.

The increases were made under an amendment to the Saskatchewan Hospitalization Act passed at the last session of the legislature.

Two Airliners Brush in Sky

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP)—Two planes carrying a total of 51 passengers and six crew members brushed each other at 11,000 feet over Michigan City Wednesday night.

The planes landed safely.

Shamrocks Reach Playoff Finals

Before the biggest crowd ever to see a lacrosse game in Victoria, the Shamrocks last night defeated Nanaimo Native Sons, 11-4, to enter the finals against Vancouver Pilseners. Happy line, above, is centred here and on the floor by Whitey Severson, who starred with an amazing six assists and one goal. At left is Archie Browning and, at right, Al Gill. This trio made up the first attacking unit last night as Rookie Gill filled in for ailing Larry Booth. Severson is holding the Maitland Trophy, which was presented to him last night as the most valuable player to a team in the Inter-City Lacrosse League. ## Death, Injuries Foil K2 Climb

Last Man on Rope Holds Firm To Save Entire Expedition

KARACHI (AP)—Death and injuries have foiled a nine-man American mountain-climbing expedition in its attempt to scale Mount Godwin Austen (K2), the world's highest unconquered peak.

Delayed reports from Kashmir said Wednesday that Arthur K. Gilkey, 26-year-old New York geologist, gave his life in the attempt. Gilkey was killed when the party, roped together, fell more than 100 feet over a razor-edged ridge at a height of 25,000 feet. Others would have been killed, too, but for the last man on the rope. He was able to anchor the line by throwing his full weight against a ledge, enabling the others to be pulled to safety.

Two members of the expedition, descending the treacherous, blizzard-swept 28,250-foot peak, were injured seriously and are suffering from frostbite. They are identified as Robert W. Craig, a ski instructor from Colorado Springs, and physicist George R. Bell of Los Alamos, N.M. The expedition, headed by Dr. Charles Houston of Exeter, N.H., was reported making its way slowly to the Kashmiri town of Skardu, from which it set out June 19. The men are scheduled to reach Skardu Monday.

It was the sixth expedition to be defeated by Godwin Austen, second-highest summit in the world. Everest, the highest at more than 29,000 feet, was conquered last May by a British expedition. Godwin Austen stands in the western Himalayas at the edge of the central Asian Karakoram Range. It is named after the eldest son of Robert Godwin Austen, English geologist. The name K2 developed from the peak's topographical reference number in early charts.

Dr. Houston, 42, who calls himself a "small-town doctor," has led attempts on K2 twice before, a major expedition in 1938 and an earlier reconnaissance survey.

Dr. Houston gained his fame among climbers for his conquest of 25,645-foot Nanda Devi, 10th highest peak in the world, located in the central Himalayas.

He also made the first reconnaissance of Mount Everest's south route in 1950. Mountaineering circles said his findings aided Sir John Hunt's ultimate conquest of Everest through the southern approach.

Winnipeg reports said low ceilings and bad visibility Wednesday grounded all of the 14 aircraft at Churchill searching for a missing Lancaster bomber which disappeared with its eight-man crew Saturday night on a flight from Rockcliffe, Ont., to Churchill.

At Edmonton, the RCAF reported Wednesday night that bush pilot Herman Peterson of Albert Bay, B.C., has been found and is in good condition. Peterson had been missing since Thursday when he took off in his plane for Stewart, B.C.

An RCAF spokesman said Peterson walked into a weather station at Dease Lake Wednesday after a trek of 75 miles from Lower Iskut Lake. There were no other details.

Peterson, alone in his single-engine plane, left Telegraph Creek, 100 miles southwest of Whitehorse, for Stewart, 120 miles north of Prince Rupert.

Senate Boatbuilding Inquiry May Look Into Other Private Jobs

BY TOM GREEN
Colonist Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Inquiry into the assembly of a boat by the Senate's carpenter on the Senate side of the Parliament Building may extend into an inquiry into reports that Senate employees have done work on other private jobs for Senate officials.

L. Clare Moyer, clerk of the Senate, who ordered the boat out of the Senate building after inquiries had been raised, said Wednesday that he had heard reports when he came back from his holidays about a boat being built in the Senate building.

Rodolphe Larose, assistant clerk of the Senate and senior official in Mr. Moyer's absence, admitted that the assembly, which began on the top floor of the Senate building and ended in the basement corridor a few yards from the entrance to the building, was being done for him. Mr. Moyer ordered the boat out of the Senate and it was hurriedly loaded on a truck and taken away through a seldom-used side door. Mr. Larose went on holidays at the same time.

However, other Senate officials say the boat definitely was only removed from the Senate building Monday morning, and Mr. Moyer has been back from his holidays for a week.

Mr. Moyer said Wednesday

Polio Delays School

EDMONTON (CP)—All Alberta schools were ordered Wednesday to remain closed two weeks beyond the normal September 1 opening as Western Canada's polio epidemic claimed an ever-increasing toll among children and adults.

So far this year the disease has claimed 70 lives in the four Western provinces—28 in Manitoba, 22 in Saskatchewan, 13 in Alberta and seven in British Columbia.

There have been 2,027 cases, more than half of them in Manitoba, experiencing its worst polio year on record. Manitoba reports 1,098 cases. Saskatchewan 345, Alberta 301 and B.C. 283.

In its previous record year, 1941, Manitoba listed 1,011 cases and 20 deaths. Last year was the worst for the other three provinces, when Saskatchewan had 1,223 cases and 90 deaths, Alberta 743 cases and 79 deaths, and B.C. 595 cases and 38 deaths.

Schools in Greater Winnipeg and in three rural Manitoba areas will remain closed until September 14. All the others will open August 31 as scheduled.

Saskatchewan school openings have been left to the discretion of local authorities. So far there have been no reports of any delays. Schools are scheduled to open September 1 and 2. In British Columbia, classes will start at the usual date, September 8.

The order to delay opening of schools in Alberta was issued by the provincial health board at a special meeting.

Seven Killed As Train Smashes Car

TRURO, N.S. (CP)—Six members of one family and a niece of the parents were killed Wednesday night when a Dominion Atlantic Railway train plowed into their car on a rain-saturated level crossing. The victims were tentatively identified as Mr. and Mrs. Murray Burgess of nearby Beaverbrook, N.S., their four children and their niece, Margaret Taylor, about 16.

Thieves Asked For Details

One good call deserves another—at least the staff at Butler Brothers' warehouse hope it does.

They want a robber who telephoned The Colonist Tuesday night to give them a buzz, too, and detail just what he and a pal did steal.

A warehouse manager wants the thief's help so an insurance report can be made out.

The robber, who called The Colonist denied that any shovels, clocks or cheques were taken in the Saanich burglary last week end, as was reported in an earlier news story.

But after the brief conversation he rang off abruptly—and forgot to leave his telephone number.

When the story appeared in Wednesday's Colonist a warehouse manager got in touch with the newspaper and asked if it would be possible to have the robber phone him and give a complete list of all that was stolen.

"There's so much small stuff around a warehouse it's a bit difficult to tell exactly what was taken," Claude Butler said.

The chap that called The Colonist had a firm, rather pleasant voice.

Perhaps he'll oblige. Saanich police hope he'll call them, too.

Canadians Find Relics of Arctic Expeditions

OTTAWA (CP)—Relics of three almost-forgotten polar expeditions have been brought back to civilization.

They were carried from the northern fastnesses by two Canadian explorers, Geoffrey Hattersley-Smith, 30, a defense research board Arctic specialist, and Robert Blackadar, 23, mines department geologist, who is also a veteran bush and tundra traveler.

The explorers returned here unexpectedly after four months of traveling along an ice shelf just north from bleak and lonely Ellesmere Island, 500 miles from the North Pole. They were due in October.

The historical relics included a British prayer book, a piece of Admiral R. E. Peary's United States flag and a Norwegian food cache that Capt. Roald Amundsen never reached.

Main purpose of the Canadians' trip was to investigate the theory that huge ice islands in the Arctic Ocean came from Ellesmere's ice shelf. It was the forerunner of a larger, joint effort by Canada and the U.S. next year.

At a press conference Wednesday, the scientists discussed their experiences and displayed the finds from three previous expeditions inside the Arctic Circle.

The relics were from the Royal Navy expedition in 1875-76 under Capt. George Nares—clothing, personal effects and a prayer book found under a rotting tent east of Alert. Arctic weather station selected as headquarters for the trip.

They displayed, too, a piece of the flag Peary later unfurled at the Pole after a dramatic dash in 1909. It was located in a five-foot stone cairn atop a 2,000-foot hill at Cape Columbia. With the flag was a note written by the admiral in 1906, saying he had been there.

Hattersley-Smith hopes to return the piece of flag to Peary's widow at Portland, Me., who made the ensign for her husband. Five other pieces of the famous flag were left by Peary at various spots in the Arctic, and three of them already have been found, and sent to her.

The third collection, mostly canned food, was found in a cache which had been left by Godfrey Hansen in 1920 as emergency supplies for Amundsen's attempt to circle the rim of the Arctic Ocean north of Europe, Asia and North America.

Amundsen, in his ship Maud, crossed north of Siberia but was forced to turn south through Bering Strait into the Pacific without reaching Canada's Arctic archipelago.

Hattersley-Smith said that compared to early explorers he and Blackadar had "no trouble."

"We had good equipment and food—better than those early expeditions," he said, pointing to the flimsy sleeping bag found from the 1875-76 Nares expedition.

The U.S. Air Force flew the pair in April to Alert, in northern Ellesmere, by way of the U.S. base at Thule, Greenland. They took in 7,000 pounds of supplies for themselves and two Eskimo companions, and horsemeat for 19 husky dogs.

They were expected to remain until October, but decided to take no chances with late-summer weather and left Alert in one of three U.S. planes which landed there recently.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

TWO cases of playing fast and loose with public property have been reported.

In Winnipeg, a woman painted a fire hydrant brown with a bright green trim to match the color of her house. In Ottawa, a Senate carpenter was found painting a boat for a Senate official in a street used corridor of the Senate.

The paint job on the fire hydrant didn't last long. A stubborn workman appeared with a can of red paint and spoiled it. Officials of the fire department told the lady that she could paint the fire hydrant any color she liked, as long as it was red.

Even this concession was a fairly generous one. The Winnipeg lady and other free-lance hydrant-painters will have at their command hues ranging from McCarthy pink to Moscow scarlet. If none of the shades of red matches the house, there is one more way out: paint the house to match the hydrant.

Give the amateur painters an inch, and they are likely to take a mile. Next thing we know, mail slots may be painted to resemble sharks' mouths. Checkerboard patterns in green and purple may appear on the streets.

A garbage collector who lingers too long flirting with the widow Riley may emerge to find his wagon decorated with candy stripes to match the awning of the house next door.

A policeman who leans against the wall for a brief nap may awaken to find that a tobaccoist has painted him to resemble a wooden Indian.

That Senate boat was found by L. C. Moyer, clerk of the Senate, in a cobwebby corridor outside the Senate divorce chambers. Before photographers could get pictures of the boat, it was removed in a hastily-summoned truck. The boat was being built for Assistant Senate Clerk Rudolphe Larose by carpenter Bill West.

Mr. Moyer said he presumed that the work was done in the carpenter's time with materials supplied by Mr. Larose. However, there is going to be an investigation.

The results of the investigation may rock the country. It will almost certainly be discovered that the Senate library has been converted into a playroom for senators' great-grandchildren. Detectives will catch the little fiends in the act of cutting priceless law books into paper dolls.

The Petawawa horses, smuggled into hiding while the election campaign was on, will be found stabled in a forgotten basement room, happily grazing on back numbers of Hansard.

Somewhere in the attic the investigators will come across a 98-year-old Senator who was mislaid in 1951.

Poisonous Plants Danger in Garden

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

It is easy enough for those of us who read adventure stories to believe in the poisonous plants of the tropical jungles; of the deadly juices extracted for smearing the tips of arrow and blow-gun darts, or for manufacturing a Mickey-finn for a tribal enemy. It is a bit hard to realize that we have plants right in our own gardens which can usher us out of this vale of tears as quickly as anything the tropics can produce.

Looking at the beautiful blue spires of delphinium, for instance, it is difficult to get into our heads that the whole delphinium family is poisonous to a greater or lesser degree, and the worst of the tribe is the curiously-shaped monkshood.

SERVED IN SALADS

Writing in the 16th Century, the herbalist John Gerard recounts: "The leaves of monkshoods were by certain ignorant persons served up in salads, and all that did eat thereof were presently taken with most cruel symptoms, and so died."

All parts of the plant are highly dangerous, and care should be taken even in dividing the roots, for if the root juices get into any tiny scratch or wound on the hand, you'll wind up shaking hands with St. Peter.

Daphne mezereum is a popular plant in our gardens, valued for its very early, sweetly-scented blooms on naked stems, but the very word "mezereum" in Persian indicates that the plant deals in death. The seeds are poisonous, though it was the bark which was much used in an earlier day as a poison drug.

ALSO AUTUMN CROCUS

The autumn crocus, colchicum, is another plant to be handled with the greatest of care, for all parts of the plant are dangerous. Cattle have been killed by eating the leaves and flowers, and the root juices are particularly deadly in cuts and scratches.

The seeds of the laburnum are dangerous—several of my readers have lost fish through laburnum seeds dropping into their pools. Most of the buttercup family have poisonous roots, including the peony, with the Christmas rose probably the most deadly.

The roots of the scarlet runner bean contain a narcotic poison, and the whole peach almond family are great manufacturers of the deadly prussic acid.

The leaves, and the kernels of peach stones, contain enough to make you ill, and occasionally an ornamental flowering almond will start heaving bitter nuts containing a really dangerous concentration of prussic acid.

The deadly nightshade, atropa belladonna, while really a wild flower, is sometimes found in our gardens. Its poisonous juices cause the iris of the eye to dilate, and as John Gerard writes: "It causeth sleep, troubleth the mind, bringeth madness if a few berries be taken inwardly, but if more be given they bring great agony and presently death."

We have one very close relation to the deadly nightshade growing in practically every garden—the potato. I have been told that the foliage and seed berries are poisonous, but this is one experiment I do not choose to make.

CLOSE RELATION
In a way, it was a changeling, for Schumann never purposely set out to build a concerto. The first movement was originally planned to stand on its own as a fantasia for piano and orchestra. The rest, like Topsy in Uncle Tom's Cabin, just grew up. For this reason, some critics find it dated. However, of late, more and more modern concert pianists are playing it.

Rubinstein, for example, in company with Steinberg and RCA Symphony tosses it off as nonchalantly as a man would brush his teeth. That perhaps is the trouble. He makes it sound too easy—and the piano is all clatter and bang.

But Wilhelm Kempff and the London Symphony under Josef Krips treat it with loving care. The mellow tones of the English piano sing out a sweet song, and the orchestral sound is a distillation of melody.

To be frank, I was prepared to hear a competent but routine performance. The reason I've written at such length about this record is a slight indication of pleasant surprise.

Perhaps I have sung the praises of the piano concerto too loudly, so let me redress the balance by calling your attention to another new recording of an old favorite. This time it is the Symphonie Espagnole by Lalo, and although in structure it is something more than a violin concerto, it partakes of its nature.

Campoli, ably supported by Van Beinum and the London Philharmonic, turns in a great performance. His tempos are somewhat slower than those used by Heifetz, but your ears are spared the acidulated bite which seems to be that naturalized American's characteristic. Campoli's violin seems to be more intimate—as if it is played for you and you alone—which makes flatter listening. (London LL 763.)

For those who are searching for some superb orchestral work, I would like to recommend two records of the Hamburg Radio Symphony under the vital baton of conductor Hans Schmidt-Isserstedt. I must confess that this is a first hearing for me. He has conducted the Berlin Philharmonic and the German Opera House Orchestra for labels which have no great reputation for fidelity or technical achievement, but this time he has been given London's world-renowned sound quality.

To those of us who have had a steady diet of Dvorak's "New World Symphony," with the ubiquitous "Going Home" theme, it will come as something of a gift of the gods to hear his Second Symphony in D minor (London LL 778). I'm no musicologist and just an amateur who listens, but if this isn't great music, then I'll go to bed with Beethoven's Fifth Symphony and dream of Winston Churchill!

Finally, let me say that if the thought of Brahms' Hungarian Dances conjures up the spectacle of thumps and trills on the piano in the parlor, then indulge in some musical psychiatry and hear this man really drive the orchestra through them. For good measure, four of Dvorak's Slavonic Dances are played over (London LL 779).

Canadians 'Charm' British Visitor, But He Finds Fault with Them, Too

BY RAY BAINES

Canadians dress in a slovenly manner, eat meals that are too big, are charming and courteous and are too few in number, according to a British visitor.

Frank Kay, a well-known

Conservative candidate for the general British elections in 1950, dropped in the Colonist Wednesday to pass on a few observations about Canada and Canadians.

VISITING RELATIVE

He is visiting his brother-in-law, N. Mallard, 122 Burnside Road West.

He said he was struck on his trip across Canada by the "untidiness of attire" in Canadians.

"They are what you might term slovenly," he said.

One the credit side, though, he found Canadians he met "charming and courteous" and acting "as if they really are pleased to see you."

"The waitress brought me

FRANK KAY

To prove his point about the size of meals, he cited a case where he dropped into a Victoria cafe, saw "half-a-dozen oysters" printed on the menu, fancied them and gave his order.

"The waitress brought me soup, bread, butter—a glass of water, then the six oysters, with chips, beans and other vegetables." Mr. Kay complained. "Look here, Miss, I said, 'I just wanted six oysters' and she just looked blank. Maybe we are used to eating less, but I would term your menu too big."

On the subject of liquor, Mr. Kay really got down to business. He found it strange, for instance, that we Canadians "do everything by twos."

"I went to one of your licensed premises and ordered a glass of beer—it's like a German lager which we don't touch in England—and they served me two glasses," he said.

Mr. Kay is 58 years old and lives at "Farnholme," Moorland Road, Poulton-Le-Fayle, Lancs. He served in the First World War and was gassed at Vimy Ridge. He was in the Second Canadian Hospital at Wimeroux, in a B.C. Ward.

"My first contact with Canada was when one of the Canadian nurses gave me a can of peaches someone had sent her from home," he said. "I'll never forget that."

He said Canadian liquor laws seemed to encourage "home drinking" and discourage "public drinking."

"In England home drinking is considered the worst form of drinking," he said.

Owner of "hundreds of modern houses" in Manchester and director of six major businesses in the English city, Mr. Kay had something to say about Canadian economy.

Canada, he said, had "immense potentialities" but it requires about four times its present population. He saw a great future for the country and pointed out that "only by gross mismanagement could Canada have a slump." He also felt that trade arrangements between Canada and Britain should be made "more elastic" for their mutual benefit.

Canada, he said, had "immense potentialities" but it requires about four times its present population. He saw a great future for the country and pointed out that "only by gross mismanagement could Canada have a slump." He also felt that trade arrangements between Canada and Britain should be made "more elastic" for their mutual benefit.

Because of his interest in real estate in Manchester, Mr. Kay had something to say about houses here. He believes that everyone should own his own home and doesn't subscribe to government rental projects.

Houses here, he said, are "too dear" and mortgage interest rates too high.

"They are all timber—why are they so dear?" he asked. He said building societies in England which provide mortgages on homes never charge more than 5 per cent.

Of the places in Canada he has seen, Victoria "is the best of the lot," Mr. Kay said, but he expressed surprise at its small population.

REMAIN IN EAST

"The trouble is that immigrants arrive in Eastern Canada and most stay there. You just get what's left," he pointed out. "You should have them land at Vancouver first. If they came to the West first I don't think they'd leave."

Mr. Kay is 58 years old and lives at "Farnholme," Moorland Road, Poulton-Le-Fayle, Lancs. He served in the First World War and was gassed at Vimy Ridge. He was in the Second Canadian Hospital at Wimeroux, in a B.C. Ward.

SUFFERED DEFEAT

In 1950 he ran as a Conservative in one of the nine Manchester ridings and was defeated in what he calls "a Socialist stronghold" by Labor Candidate George Tomlinson, who later became Education Minister.

In 1951 he lost the Conservative nomination to E. S. T. Johnson, a former Canadian rancher whom his friends called "Cowboy."

"You might say I'm an amateur politician," he said "but it has been suggested that I might be candidate in the next election."

Mr. Kay is accompanied by his wife who hasn't seen her brother for 27 years.

A PADRE IN PRINT

BY REV. WILLIAM HILLS

A record player is a key which opens many musical doors—and there's the rub! Just how do you go about the job of building up a record collection? Obviously, if you are a modern Monte Cristo, you could phone a shop and say, "Send me up a hundred of the best." But would their best be your choice of the best?

Most of us have too little money and considerably more taste than to perpetuate such a monstrous gaffe, but a start must be made. Where do we begin?

If we have some particular musical liking—the voice or a solo instrument—then that's where to begin. But most people who write to me about this problem have no special preference. They simply want to hear good music of a general character, and they are consumed with eagerness to set the turntable spinning.

What about building your record library on the piano concerto? Here you will have the delight which the well-played piano always brings. It is the universally accepted instrument in western society. On the top of this, you will command the professional services of a great orchestra so that your disc, from start to finish, will provide you with ever changing musical interest.

One such record is the new London issue of the Schumann Piano Concerto in A Minor (LL 781). Now this is a veritable warhorse which has won a pianistic success for many aspiring—and perspiring—performers. It has been in the repertoire for a long time. As a matter of fact, it passed its 100th birthday in 1945, and it took from 1841 (the completion of the first movement) until 1845 to achieve its present form.

In a way, it was a changeling, for Schumann never purposely set out to build a concerto. The first movement was originally planned to stand on its own as a fantasia for piano and orchestra. The rest, like Topsy in Uncle Tom's Cabin, just grew up. For this reason, some critics find it dated. However, of late, more and more modern concert pianists are playing it.

To be frank, I was prepared to hear a competent but routine performance. The reason I've written at such length about this record is a slight indication of pleasant surprise.

Perhaps I have sung the praises of the piano concerto too loudly, so let me redress the balance by calling your attention to another new recording of an old favorite. This time it is the Symphonie Espagnole by Lalo, and although in structure it is something more than a violin concerto, it partakes of its nature.

Campoli, ably supported by Van Beinum and the London Philharmonic, turns in a great performance. His tempos are somewhat slower than those used by Heifetz, but your ears are spared the acidulated bite which seems to be that naturalized American's characteristic. Campoli's violin seems to be more intimate—as if it is played for you and you alone—which makes flatter listening. (London LL 763.)

For those who are searching for some superb orchestral work, I would like to recommend two records of the Hamburg Radio Symphony under the vital baton of conductor Hans Schmidt-Isserstedt. I must confess that this is a first hearing for me. He has conducted the Berlin Philharmonic and the German Opera House Orchestra for labels which have no great reputation for fidelity or technical achievement, but this time he has been given London's world-renowned sound quality.

To those of us who have had a steady diet of Dvorak's "New World Symphony," with the ubiquitous "Going Home" theme, it will come as something of a gift of the gods to hear his Second Symphony in D minor (London LL 778). I'm no musicologist and just an amateur who listens, but if this isn't great music, then I'll go to bed with Beethoven's Fifth Symphony and dream of Winston Churchill!

Finally, let me say that if the thought of Brahms' Hungarian Dances conjures up the spectacle of thumps and trills on the piano in the parlor, then indulge in some musical psychiatry and hear this man really drive the orchestra through them. For good measure, four of Dvorak's Slavonic Dances are played over (London LL 779).

UN Charter Changes Favored by Dulles

BOSTON (AP)—The United Nations charter is "pre-atomic age" and needs important alterations, U.S. State Secretary John Foster Dulles says.

Scientist Plans Unknown

LONDON (Reuters)—British supply ministry and Canadian officials here Wednesday said they could neither confirm nor deny reports that a Canadian university post may be found for a Russian-born scientist who has been given leave from his atomic research job.

A ministry spokesman confirmed that Boris Davison, mathematician employed at Britain's Harwell research station, had been given one year's leave of absence. "We know nothing about the reported Canadian post, however," he added.

The Daily Express claimed Davison was removed from his post because it was considered that he is open to "blackmail by Communist agents" because his parents are still in Russia. This reason has not been confirmed by an official source.

The paper added that it was hoped to find Davison a university appointment in Canada. A spokesman for the Canadian National Research Council in London said he knew nothing of the report.

He told the general assembly of the American Bar Association Wednesday that "as one who was at San Francisco where the charter was drafted and signed early in 1945, I can say with confidence that it is inadequate."

He said the provisions of the charter dealing with disarmament would have been far more emphatic and realistic.

"Ignorance" of atomic power was one of the inadequacies of the charter, he said.

Another "sprang from the fact that the three leaders who planned the United Nations were President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Generalissimo Stalin, the three who led the wartime victory coalition against Hitlerite Germany."

"Naturally—and inevitably they looked upon the United Nations as a kind of peacetime prolongation of the wartime triumvirate."

The third inadequacy was "disregard of the fact that world order, in the long run, depends not on men, but upon law."

Dulles has already announced that the U.S. will vote in favor of holding a review conference on the UN charter when the question comes up before the general assembly in 1955.

Phone Lifts Trance

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—A few words spoken over the telephone Wednesday apparently were enough to snap a pretty blonde waitress out of a trance she had been in since Sunday after an exhibition of hypnosis.

Betty Smith, 25, of Nelson, B.C., was one of 20 persons who volunteered to be hypnotized by "The Great Dr. Zomb" Saturday night at a show here.

The others were relieved of the hypnotic effect at the end of their stage appearance.

Betty seemed to come out, too, but kept falling asleep Sunday at work and was finally taken to hospital.

"Dr. Zomb" was located and relieved the girl of the trance by speaking to her over the telephone. The girl said she remembered nothing of the show and her last recollection was going to it.

She was reported in improved condition.

TUC Soft-Pedals Nationalization

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain's 8,000,000-member Trades Union Congress has soft-pedaled some of the official Labor Party's new nationalization plans and warned against the incidental risks of extending state control.

In a report to members Tuesday, the general council, the governing committee of the TUC, made it clear to the Labor Party's general council's reaction should be "a substantial degree of public ownership."

Russian Marshals Out of Limelight

INTERPRETING THE NEWS

BY WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP News Analyst

Marshals Georgi K. Zhukov and Alexander M. Vasilevsky, Soviet war heroes who became deputy defense ministers after Stalin's death, have been strangely missing for the last month from important Moscow gatherings.

Their absence may have much to do with the power struggle in the Kremlin, and possibly even with preparations for a trial of former Interior Minister Lavrenty P. Beria.

In the hectic days of the Beria purge, there was much speculation in the West about the future of Zhukov. He looked then like a rising power whose popularity and glittering prestige might boost him to a military dictatorship.

But now there seems to be a suggestion between the lines in the Soviet press that the Communist party—always suspicious of the army—has been able to shove Zhukov and other strictly military men into the background, at least for the present.

Many generals and admirals were present at various parties given in Moscow in honor of the visiting East German Communist government delegation.

But Gen. Vasily Chuikov, the most recent Soviet military administration chief in East Germany, was not there.

There is reason to believe that Zhukov, Vasilevsky, Gen. Sergei Shtemenko (who was in Germany with Chuikov last February) and Chuikov were dissatisfied with the way things were going in East Germany, and had pointed out that it was the army which had to save the situation when the civilians let the East Germans get out of hand.

Zahedi told Henderson that ousted Premier Mohammed Mossadegh emptied the treasury before he was overthrown last week in a royalist coup, the informants said.

As the result, Zahedi said, Iran's economy is now in critical condition.

It was indicated that Henderson would make an urgent report to the U.S. state department.

Oddity

TORONTO (CP)—Two-gun John Wolff didn't ruffle Toronto hordes when he hit town Monday.

Delivering two sub-machine-guns to the Pinkerton detective agency on one of Toronto's busiest streets, he couldn't find a parking space so he hitched his car two blocks down the street, put a gun under each arm and headed through rush-hour crowds for the agency.

"I expected to be arrested any minute, but nobody even looked at me," said Wolff.

Administrative Rulings Called Threat to Freedom

BOSTON (AP)—Andre Taschereau, president of the Canadian Bar Association, Wednesday listed administrative rulings and labor legislation as "threats to the freedom of the individual."

Taschereau, in an address before Wednesday's 75th annual meeting of the American Bar Association, said that "administrative boards, in Canada, at least, are replacing more and more our law courts in very important matters."

"While great sums of money are frequently involved," Taschereau said, "there is no appeal from their decisions or judgments, even though they may have been rendered by a bare majority of the board."

"Even worse, these boards may exceed their jurisdiction, but the litigants have no redress against their rulings—so at least says the law."

"All they can do is experiment by way of trial and error; but given freedom and the rule of law, errors can usually be corrected."

He said "people must be taught to respect the law if we are to have freedom."

"New ideas and ways of life have created situations that have baffled even the cleverest jurists, sociologists and economists," he said.

"All they can do is experiment by way of trial and error; but given freedom and the rule of law, errors can usually be corrected."

The Will To Agree Is Lacking

IN any human controversy it is the will to agree or to disagree which determines the outcome; that is, the spirit in which the discussion is entered. Mr. Andrei Vishinsky's tirade before the United Nations assembly yesterday was clearly a delaying manoeuvre, as most of his outbursts have been in the past. It is of greater significance why delay was thus sought. Did the West look too united on the issues of a political conference, and was nothing more to be made of the recent divergence between Great Britain and the United States over Indian representation? Perhaps both factors counted with the Kremlin. Whatever the reason, Mr. Vishinsky had his orders to bark agreement, and with his usual thoroughness he did just that.

There is a repeated lesson in the proceedings for the West as seasoned observers well know. The West must be completely and wholly in agreement, and have moreover the power to implement a decision before its argument will be listened to with respect by the Soviet bloc. So long as there is a single chance of disagreement among western nations, or so long as the probable power to enforce a decree is disputed or lacking, delaying tactics will be used by the Communist partnership to block any normal improvement in world relations which might bring to an end the excuse for prolongation of the cold war.

The salient fact is that Russia does not want to agree with the United Nations on any account. So long as the present war of nerves and muddled international dealings can be perpetuated without the direct involvement of the Soviet Union itself that will be the main play. Disagreement over the Korean truce becomes therefore just a newer form of the cold war itself; and the Soviet gestures of stopping the fighting and exchanging prisoners merely the means to the end of further barracking of a solid world peace.

In the last analysis action reveals the real intention. To try to keep the West off balance is so very clearly the present aim of the Soviet bloc that Mr. Vishinsky merely has to pull a stock speech from the cupboard, smarten up its anti-Western vilification and let it fly at Lake Success, to fulfill the whole of the intended Communist contribution towards peace on earth.

Protection for Users of Gas

A YEAR or so ago, following a case in Victoria of fatal poisoning by domestic gas, it was discovered with astonishment and dismay that there was neither provincial nor local regulation over the installation of gas appliances for the protection of those who use them. This case was only one of many distressing instances of loss of life from asphyxiation by household gas in recent years, but it served an important purpose because evidence at the inquest established that death was attributable directly to faulty workmanship which expert inspection almost certainly would have detected.

Since its toxic properties, not to mention the explosion factor, render domestic gas more potentially dangerous to human life than most other kinds of household fuel, users are in need of the protection which official supervision can best afford. This is especially so in the case of gas stoves and heaters because of the fact that it is widely used by elderly and per-tially helpless people who sleep in the same rooms in which they do their cooking. Regulation might not save such people from the consequences of their own forgetfulness or inadvertence, but demonstrably it could set up safeguards.

It is reassuring to know, therefore, that the British Columbia government is about to establish a uniform code of safety regulations complementing those already under the jurisdiction of the provincial fire marshal with respect to other types of heating and cooking installations. In this there appears to be no thought of usurping the authority of municipal bodies, since the provincial code will set up minimum standards as a guide, leaving it to local councils to exercise more rigid control if they see fit. Users of domestic gas thus will be assured of reasonable protection, whether there is a local by-law or not. This is a long-needed safety measure, which can be counted on to bring about at least a partial reduction in the statistics of fatal gas poisoning.

Proving His Value

IF the impression has been abroad that he was opposed to the office of city manager if not its incumbent the mayor has only himself to blame. His public comments at the time he became chief magistrate scarcely left any other conclusion to be drawn, it being obvious that he looked with some skepticism on the new system of handling departmental affairs at the City Hall. Happily that now belongs to the past and it is pleasant to hear His Worship express himself as being in favor of the renewal of the city manager's contract.

Mr. Wyatt has pursued his duties in quiet and unspectacular fashion, sticking to his principal task of tightening civic procedures and recommending policies of a broad and long-term nature. It seems apparent the city manager system has worked well, and the report presented by him this week reflects a decided improvement in civic finances. Prudent husbandry and more efficient methods are beginning to show worthwhile results and the future picture painted by him is encouraging. Clearly he has earned the confidence in him now expressed by Mayor Harrison.

No one is in a better position than the mayor to note the value of a city manager, since the duties of the latter are tied in closely with the day to day exigencies of the mayoralty. It seems apparent also that both men, one elected and the other appointed, have worked harmoniously together. Whatever inhibitions may have existed at the outset have since disappeared, to the point where the mayor graciously concedes the value of the work accomplished by Mr. Wyatt and recommends his continuance in office. He has done a good job, says His Worship, and that is a commendable endorsement from which the city council should have no reason for dissenting. A continuance of the progress being made is in the best interests of the city.

CO-OPERATIVES IN SWEDEN

Sir,—Mr. H. F. Hoag has got some information about Sweden, my native country, through the book "Sweden the Middle Way," by the author on the matter, Marjorie W. Childs. After having spent 25 years of my life in Sweden, I feel entitled to inform you about the following facts:

Although Mr. Childs' book contains many interesting facts; it is, in Sweden, considered to be Marxist-Socialistic propaganda literature. It is right that in Sweden there exists a tremendous co-operative organization, representing the producing labor who's and the consuming members of these unions (the organization has 900,000 members and over 7,000 retail stores). It is, however, not right that it is free from political control or self-governing, but it is entirely controlled by the Social Democratic Party, and thereby also by the state. (The Social Democratic Party has ruled Sweden for more than 20 years.) Furthermore, most of its profit is going into the hands of its controllers. Consequently, you and I and everybody else must ask ourselves: Where is the freedom of the economic life? And what is happening to the private enterprise?

There is a contradiction in Mr. Hoag's letter, when he first warns that law be imposed on freedom, "perhaps by a dictator," etc., then blames only the greed-minded for realizing the opposites, freedom and law.

ANN FIBIGER,

CORPORAL PUNISHMENT

Sir,—As I did not hear R. Pashley's persuasion on corporal punishment I cannot comment on it; but how little it takes to get socialist stuff across. Instead of more leniency the law needs enforcing as never before. When any and every flimsy excuse is offered to shield the wrong doer, no wonder crimes especially of violence are on the increase. Did it ever occur to your correspondent that the culprits for whom she wallows in sympathy need never have been there if they were but for their own acts? As for the talk of "getting even" no one takes much notice of that. If their punishment is adequate they have sense enough not to try. As things are the protection of the public seems to have been forgotten and the only victim is the perpetrator of a robbery or assault or both. Perhaps if your correspondent had come up against some of these characters for whom she is so concerned her ideas would change drastically, speedily. Meanwhile let those who have the administering of the law handle their work in their own way. After all they know more about it than your correspondent or any one else can tell them. Being soft-hearted is one thing; being soft-headed is quite another.

(MRS.) L. F. HEYWOOD,
Tudor Road, Victoria, B.C.

BUTTER INQUIRY

Sir,—It is to be hoped that the investigation now taking place in eastern Canada in regard to the adulteration of butter will be extended to the west. For some time now some of the butter has been strongly suspect, even though the price has remained consistently high.

There seems to be an increasing tendency in this, as in some other trades, to gouge the public by lowering the quality of goods supplied, yet raising the price.

Perhaps the new governments, both federal and provincial, will look into their respective fields in these matters, and give some protection to the public from exploitation.

Thinking Aloud Gerald Waring

... of shoes—and ships—and sailing war—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

THE Totem Theatre is merely incidental to my theme today, although in passing I would like to give it a pat on the back. It takes courage to launch a repertory company here in the middle of the vacation season—in deed, it takes courage to launch it here, period—and I hope the faith is justified.

To date for my taste the comedies concerned have been frothy affairs that could scarcely matter less, but that is no criticism of the talent apparently at the company's command. There is a finesse about the acting that deserves plays of more substance, and no doubt these will be forthcoming. I see, for instance, that Shakespeare is listed among the future offerings, which is an indication of the spirit behind the Totem enterprise.

If I may venture to say so, however, and this touches what is uppermost in my mind at the moment, some attention might be given to the playing of the National Anthem that precedes the performance. Performance this rendering is by phonograph and a new record could be substituted with advantage, the present one sounding worn and scratchy and being none too tuneful in any case. The anthem doesn't gain either in being played in entirety, a few bars would be sufficient.

As a matter of fact I have lately been thinking that "The Queen" is played far too frequently, and often on occasions when it would be better left unplayed. The anthem is after all a tribute and a prayer, and when sounded in an environment ill fitting the mood that should accompany it the result is to reduce not only its dignity but its virtue.

It has become the habit to play or sing the National Anthem at a quite amazing variety of gatherings, movies, club luncheons, concerts, meetings of different kinds, and in consequence the tribute is invariably perfunctory, sung at best in a half-hearted manner and seldom played with the spirit and fire noticeable in the rendition at our symphony concerts. Here for once the tempo and feeling is such as to focus one's mind on the subject matter of the anthem. If not indeed to send a slight shiver down the spine, which I imagine is as it should be.

At military parades and such like "The Queen" falls into place as though it belonged, which of course it does, although even under such circumstances repetition can pall. What the Queen herself thinks of the tune that greets her on every public occasion I have no means of knowing, albeit I watched the Duke of Edinburgh draw himself up to attention at Pibroch Camp when the Canadian contingent saluted him I couldn't but think that secretly he must be bored by the very sound of the anthem. Royalty, however, dissembles admirably, as it must.

I have a notion now that if we didn't hear the National Anthem so often we would pay more attention to it when it was played, giving some thought to its content perhaps instead of regarding it as a bore to be suffered in rigid silence or grudging assent. If "The Queen" were reserved for special occasions we might then regard it in the proper light, as something special itself.

Reports from Ottawa

A HURRIED meeting in a makeshift conference room at the Fredericton, N.B., airport last week was sufficiently unusual, in view of the persons involved, to invite keen speculation.

To the conference flew Production Minister Howe, from his summer home at St. Andrews, N.B. His assistant deputy minister and aircraft production chief, T. N. Beaupre, and Beaupre's own assistant in plane production, T. E. Stephenson, flew down from Ottawa. Then a white-starred aircraft of the USAF's Military Air Transport Service swooped in from the south and debarked Roger Lewis, United States assistant secretary for air, and Lt. Gen. Orval R. Cook, the USAF's chief procurement officer.

After quick handshakes, they moved to the airport manager's office and talked behind closed doors for half an hour. Then they emerged, got into their respective aircraft, and departed.

What was so pressing as to require men of the calibre of Lewis and Cook to fly to Fredericton and interrupt the minister's holiday hasn't been disclosed, and may never be. But a look at the picture of Canadian air production for defense may indicate the answer.

In the first place, it isn't likely the USAF is interested right now in utilizing Canada's surplus productive capacity to turn out American-designed planes for the USAF. The United States itself has plenty of spare capacity, and only two months ago the USAF helped increase Canada's idle aircraft plant by canceling a $117,000,000 order it had placed with Canadair of Montreal for T-36 twin-engine transports.

The only other planes Canada is producing for the USAF are $7,000,000 worth of Texan trainers being turned out at Fort William, and De Havilland Beavers, of which the USAF has bought about 300 for liaison and light transport.

It is of course true that there was a sweep of sorts, all 100 Communists

However, it's quite possible the USAF may be interested in Canadian designs, and specifically the CF-100, the Orenda jet engine, Canadair's CL-21, and guided missiles.

Why the CF-100? Because in the air defense of Alaska the USAF faces the same problems of distance and weather as the RCAF faces in covering the bomber approaches to Canada—problems which the CF-100 was designed to overcome.

Also because the supersonic Mark IV, which will begin coming off Avro's production line this year, is a greatly improved CF-100, and the most heavily armed fighter interceptor in the world. And because, in Howe's own words, the CF-100 "appears to be superior to its only immediate competitor", Northrop's F-89 Scorpion.

Why the Orenda? Because in the latest production version it is a first-rate gas turbine delivering a thrust of 7,500 foot pounds, and there's more power on its way from the drawing boards.

Why the CL-21? Because it is designed to replace the workhorse of the air world, the obsolete DC-3 or C-47. Lewis, incidentally, formerly was a Canadair vice-president.

Why guided missiles? Because our Defense Research Board has been remarkably successful in missile development. Pre-production prototypes are now being made for testing by the RCAF.

These, of course, are only possibilities. But if there's something big in the offing for the Canadian aircraft industry, one of these four may be the answer. As to which—well, until Howe is ready to talk you pay your money and take your choice.

Communist Sweep

(From The Winnipeg Free Press)

U.S. newspapers distinguished for their admiration of Senator McCarthy expressed some concern recently over the fact that the Communists had nominated 100 candidates for Parliament in the Canadian general elections.

It is to be hoped that the sequel was also noted in the United States. The returns scarcely suggest that Canada has become a second Guatemala and there is really nothing in them to enhance the credit of local comrades with their new boss in Moscow.

It is of course true that there was a sweep of sorts, all 100 Communists having been swept by the elections into the political dustbin. Indeed all 100 sacrificed their deposits to the Treasury of Canada, a somewhat curious achievement but one highly gratifying to about 99 per cent of the voters.

What may perhaps occasion surprise among certain U.S. senators is the fact that this pleasant result was achieved with a minimum of fuss, indeed without even the formality of investigations. Somehow the voters managed it without benefit of native McCarthyism, Velde, Jensen or McCarran.

It is of course true that there was a sweep of sorts, all 100 Communists

Mother (to small son)—Just think, those poor little children have no father and no mother, and no Aunt Sarah. Wouldn't you like to give them something?

Small Son—How about giving them Aunt Sarah?

Old age is everybody's problem. And it is everybody's problem not only because everybody will one day be old. It is everybody's problem because the burden of old age is becoming one of the greatest of national burdens. And it is growing all the time. The problem is an anxious one because the number of older people is enlarging in relation to the total population.

—Montreal Gazette.

A French actor who happened to be in London during a great fog relates the following incident: One day, while driving his automobile, he heard a crash. He had bumped into the rear fender of the car ahead of him.

"Can't you be careful," the Frenchman yelled. "What's the idea of braking so abruptly?" "Sorry, old man," the Englishman replied, "I couldn't go any farther, I'm in my garage."

On the Record...

Tension in West Germany

BY DOROTHY THOMPSON

BERLIN.—Hardly more than a year has passed since I was last in West Germany and Berlin. Meanwhile, economic progress has continued unabated and the re-election of Chancellor Adenauer seems assured, even his opponents conceding him from 52 to 60 per cent of the votes. The attitude of the man in the street, in so far as it can be gauged, appears to be, "Who is better? Why change?"

All this appears favorable to Western policy if one does not look very deeply beneath the surface. The average German's world is encompassed by his work, which he performs with model efficiency, his family, and—in these dog days—the annual two-week holiday and the trek to mountains, forest, or seashore. He inclines to leave political decisions to the "experts"—the professional politicians.

Nevertheless, there is in West Germany and especially in Berlin and in both sectors of the city, a tension immeasurably more acute than a year ago. Among people who are not satisfied to live from day to day their private lives—those who think, feel, read, analyze and watch developments—there is a conviction that events are mounting to a climax, a climax hastened by the uprising in the Russian zone on June 17, and the days following, and exacerbated by the intensified psychological warfare since the Eisenhower-Dulles administration came in. This year I found, as I did not a year ago, people who believe that war is on the horizon, and not even in the distant future.

Germans worth talking with, because they think independently, are waiting with almost desperate intensity for the Western answer to the Russian notes of August 5 and 17, the latter with its accompanying proposal for a German peace treaty.

The American press in Germany, and I presume here at home, and the Adenauer press have followed the line that the notes are merely attempts to influence the German elections.

This interpretation seems to these thoughtfully concentrated Germans frivolous, to say the least. The notes with certain changes follow logically the earlier Russian note of March, 1952, which no one in Europe whose intellectual acumen and independence I, for one, respect, believes was adequately or even sincerely answered. Their attitude is that the Russians are approaching a line from which they will not retreat unilaterally, or except in the framework of a general settlement with more protection for Russian security than paper guarantees, and that those who think they will be playing with fire in a literal sense—i.e., with war.

This is not the view of Bonn, which appears confident that if the West sticks to its guns Russia will give in to the point of accepting the European defense treaty. But it is the view of those Germans who have had some dealings with Russian authorities in the East Zone, notably evangelical churchmen, and it is the view also of even those experts on Russia from the old foreign office who advise the Bonn government, but apparently to deaf ears.

These, who take the Russians seriously, do not view the East German rising as intimidating the Russians but rather as first giving them a severe shock followed by a pulling together of all Russian forces. They interpret the arrest of Beria as repelling to some degree the actions of Stalin in the face of rising German menace, when he purged everyone who by any stretch of the imagination could be considered unreliable in case of war.

Certainly the effect in the Russian zone of Germany has been to strengthen, not weaken, the position of the most intransigent Communist personalities, notably Walter Ulbricht, who before June 17 seemed slated to disappear as a further conciliatory gesture in harmony with the "new course."

The strikes in France against the state itself have further shaken German confidence. Germans feel themselves out in front with nothing reliable behind them. And they say, "The Russian notes must be answered, and with something positive." They fear the rigidity of Mr. Dulles at a time when elasticity and imagination are essential.

June 16-17 showed them the extreme danger of a divided Germany, especially if both sides are armed. They ask what would have happened if the revolt had actually reached proportions to seriously threaten the East German government with overthrow, and if the rebels had then called for armed aid from their Western brethren. And they answer their own question: the third world war.

Golf—Here's How

BY SAM SNEAD

Since most golfers are much more concerned with getting rid of a chronic slice than they are with trying to learn how to play an intentional one, this lesson today is really aimed at the more advanced players. There are many times when an "educated slice" is both helpful and desirable to such players.

The way to obtain a controlled slice, or slight fade to the right, is to open the stance slightly and play the ball further forward toward the left foot. This will tend to bring the clubhead across the ball from the outside in, giving it the spin which creates a slice.

To increase this slice tendency, you can move your hands over a little left on the grip so that the thumbs are more on top of the shaft and the V's point straight up, rather than at your right shoulder. This opens the face of the club even more at impact, adding to the slice influence.

Top Canadian Talent Establishes Bombers as Favorites

BY AL VICKERY

WINNIPEG (CP) — Each autumn—well, that's when football is supposed to start—the West's recurrent attack of football fever nears the crisis stage.

Right now, everybody is calling Winnipeg Blue Bombers as "the team to beat" in the West this year.

They point to Bombers' impressive pre-season victories the defending champion Toronto Argonauts; Winnipeg's abundance of Canadian talent; and their top-flight imports.

COACH CAUTIONS

Everybody is picking the Bombers, that is, except coach George Trafton.

The bruising former Chicago Bear centre recalls his last two years as coach of the Winnipeg aggregation. On paper and in the eyes of most fans, Bombers were "the team to beat" both in 1951 and 1952. But they never went east in search of the Grey Cup.

Edmonton Eskimos knocked them off in the Western semi-finals in 1951. The same Eskis spotted Bombers, who walked away with the league race, one game in last year's Western final then roared back to take two straight.

"Sure, we're stronger than last year," says Trafton, "and, barring injuries, we'll hold our own."

"We're up against a new formation, the split T, at Edmonton, and both Regina and Calgary have got new set-ups. We've got new imports, untested rookies and veterans who will have to work together. They've got to click."

Football has become big business off in the West. Bombers operated on a $300,000 budget last year, but expenses this year are expected to be much higher due to more and better imports and home-brews.

FACES PROBLEM

One of the strongest arguments that the 1953 Bombers are going to be tough is that, for the first time in many years, their coach is having a rough time cutting his Canadian players. They've never had it so good.

It is on the shoulders of these Canadians that the load will fall after the import-cutting deadline of October 1. Trafton believes "a team is just as good as its Canadian players." Injuries in exhibition games already have sidelined two locals, offensive centre Gar Baxter and end Ron Vachet.

Bombers are well stocked with 14 imports. The one big

Calgary Sets Sunday Game

CALGARY (CP) — Response to Sunday professional baseball will be tested here for the first time September 6 when Calgary Stampede play host to Edmonton Eskimos in a Western International League night game.

A recent Sunday game in Edmonton drew 3,500 fans and a silver collection of $1,700. Vancouver also has tried a W.I.L. game on the Sabbath.

The Calgary fixture was originally part of a double-header scheduled for Labor Day, September 7. Now only one game will be played that day.

Argonauts of last season in their line-up—halfback Bobby Moorhead and linebacker Don Moomaw—didn't look too strong offensively at times and on two occasions in the third quarter the Alouettes threw them back in two goal-line stands.

Argonauts generally outplayed the Alouettes, who could get their offense going only in spurts and starts. The deciding factor was the Argo reserve strength which coach Frank Clair called upon when the heat began to slow up both teams.

problem is which eight to keep. They'll probably all be around Saturday night when Bombers open the 1953 Western Inter-provincial Football Union schedule at home against Edmonton.

SURE TO STICK

Assured of their positions, barring injuries, are tackles Dick Huffman and Buddy Tinsley, both Western all-stars last year—and likely ends. Neill Armstrong and Bud Grant. Armstrong sat out last season after making the West's all-stars in 1951. Grant was second leading offensive end in the National Football League last year while with Philadelphia Eagles.

A fixture at quarterback is Jack Jacobs, now a four-year man with Bombers. Jacobs, named to the all-stars and also most valuable man in the league, set a WIFU record in 1952 by tossing 34 touchdown passes. He also excels on kicking and defensive work.

Vying for the other three import spots are these newcomers: Quarterback Tommy Thompson, former Philadelphia great who came up originally as backfield coach; fullback Ray Dohn Dillon, last year with Hamilton Tiger-Cats; half Bill Bye, formerly with University of Minnesota; and centre Keith Carpenter, from San Jose State via Edmonton Eskimos.

Hold-over imports include: Quarter Joe Zaleski, half Gerry Palmer, fullback Ralph McAllister, centre John Brown and tackle Sam Nevills, who relieved Huffman and Tinsley until cut-off time last year.

NEW 'CANADIAN'

the qualifying of all-star Tom Casey as a non-import this season after four years of Canadian football.

But it is the Canadian names that impress fans as they look down the roster. Added to the club are: Tom Harper, defensive end last year with Argos; Geoff Crain, quarterback from McGill; guard Buck Rogers from Ottawa; end Bill Laroche from Montreal and

Rocks Beat Sons Easily As Penalties Turn Tide

BY JIM TANG

It was an anti-climax.

There's about as good a way as any to describe the deciding game of the best-of-five Inter-City Lacrosse League semi-final between Victoria Shamrocks and Nanaimo Native Sons played at Memorial Arena last night before a record crowd of about 5,500.

But while the game failed to pack the punch of the previous four in the hectic series, the 5,000 Victorians in the capacity crowd spent an anxious 20 minutes before two costly penalties enabled the league champions to get the start they needed to pull away to an easy 11-4 triumph.

And, today, they'll start worrying all over again with the joys of victory tempered by the thought that Vancouver Pileners are the next hurdle in the road that leads to the Mann Cup final. That best-of-seven series opens here Friday with the next game at Vancouver Monday, the third here next Wednesday and the fourth at Vancouver on Friday September 4. If needed, the fifth, sixth and seventh games will be played on Monday, September 7 here, Wednesday September 9 in Vancouver, and Friday, September 11 here.

Two unnecessary—silly might be a more descriptive adjective—penalties, paved the way for the Nanaimo defeat last night. The Sons, hustling like all get-out and checking well, held their own in the first quarter, 1-1, and gave Victorians a real case of jitters in the early minutes of the second as they scored, while Tom Druce sat out the first of three penalties, to take a 2-1 lead. It didn't look too good for the champions at that stage.

Then Pat Patterson drew a two-minute penalty for dragging Jackie Northup to the floor in the Victoria zone. As soon as Druce returned, the Rocks struck quickly with their manpower advantage to score the tying and go-ahead goals, despite the best efforts of goalie Fred Fulla, who blocked two point-blank shots before he finally yielded.

Hard-working Harry Irwin, a bundle of energy who never stops, got them both to become one of the series heroes. Each time he took a pass from Whitey Severson at the right side of the goal, drifted out in front, and picked his spot.

SCOTT GOES, TOO
His second goal came at 5:38 and it was still a ball game. But Lisle Scott tripped Severson at 6:50 and before he returned from the penalty box, Northup had taken Severson's third successive scoring pass for a fourth goal.

That was it. The Sons wilted there as they became a bit panicky and the Rocks suddenly started playing with the confidence and looseness which had been missing up until then. From Northup's goal at 7:19, there was never any doubt of the outcome as the Rocks took control and slowly added to their total.

Before the period was over, Bob Monaghan threaded his way through three opponents for a spectacular individual goal, his seventh of the series, and Archie Browning scored while Druce was serving his second penalty.

Two of Rocks' five second-half goals came while Nanaimo played overhauled while the Sons could do no better than their goal-quarter pace of the first half.

SEVERSON STARS
The game was the game of the series, who received the Mailand Trophy for being selected as the most valuable player to his club in the league—and then went out to prove to the selectors that he was the right choice. The blonde centre passed for six goals, for what may be a playoff record, and scored one. His scoring "shot" was actually intended as a pass to Irwin, who didn't see it until the last minute and dropped quickly to avoid being hit. Fulla hardly expected this and the ball floated by him into the hem.

Not far behind Severson was Irwin, who scored the two big goals and then added a third in the third quarter for a three-goal night. Veteran Arnie Ferguson, a steady influence when things were close, also scored three goals while a steadily-improving Browning got two.

FULLA AGAIN GOOD
For Nanaimo, it was again Fulla, who blocked 37 shots in a fine effort for a losing cause. John Lumley, well in check by Druce, was given credit for a goal when Jack Scott's shot bounced off his back into the goal, but otherwise contributed nothing and seemed to lose all interest after Rocks went ahead. A jarring check from Duff McCaghey early in the game might have been a contributing factor to his poor showing.

There was little rough play and it is to the credit of the Nanaimo team that there was no effort to roughen things up when defeat was inevitable. And a word of praise is due, too, to referees Bill Dickenson seems probable that coach Red McMillan, a much-relieved man

Leaving floor together after game were opposing goalies, both of whom turned in some fine netminding. Victoria's Jim Hetherington is on left with Fred Fulla, Nanaimo's individual star, taking defeat in sportsmanlike fashion. Fulla was great throughout series, almost beating favored Victorians with his sensational play. Shamrocks fired 225 shots at him in five games and he stopped all but 47 for 79 per centage. He stopped 36 of 47 last night but it wasn't enough. Hetherington played in four games, and managed to block 94 of the 121 shots fired at him for identical average.

Victory Tyeys, returning to Royal Athletic Park tonight for their final 1953 home stand, concluded their most spectacular series of the season, at Vancouver Wednesday night, when they scored their third successive shutout victory over the Capilano and pushed Harvey Storey's club five and a half games behind the leading Spokane Indians.

The Tyeys edged the Caps,

1-0, as Bob Drilling pitched a brilliant four-hitter in stretching the Vancouver string of scoreless innings to 33. Earl Dollins blanked the Capilano, 6-0, in the second game of Tuesday's doubleheader after Bill Bottler had served up a 2-0 whitewashing in the opener.

Vancouver was held without a run during the final seven innings of a previous game with Calgary.

In marking up his 15th victory in 29 decisions, Drilling did not issue a base on balls and struck out four while yielding six hits. The Caps never got a runner past second base and only two got that far.

Van Fletcher took his 12th loss instead of his 15th win as he limited the Tyeys to four hits before being lifted for a pinch-hitter in the bottom of the eighth. The first Victoria hit came when Lu Brannan tripled in the sixth inning.

WINNING RUN

Brannan, who started the winning rally in Bottler's win Tuesday, scored the winning run in the eighth inning. The little second baseman bounced a single over shortstop Jim Clark's head, stole second and came across on Bob Moniz's single through the middle.

Bill Brenner's fast-moving Lewiston Braves provide the opposition for the Tyeys in a "ladies' night" game at Athletic Park tonight with manager C. Carriotti expected to send a rested Bill Prior to the mound in an attempt to prolong the Tyeys' streak. Game time is 8 p.m.

CROWDS SMALL

With Lewiston rained out in their game against Wenatchee Chiefs, Spokane Indians edged back into the league lead by a single percentage point as they defeated Yakima Bears before a scant 194 paying customers.

Philadelphia scored twice in each of five consecutive innings, then put down a ninth-inning rally to down Chicago. Each team picked up 15 hits and one of them, a disputed triple by the Athletics' Dave Philley, led White Sox manager Paul Richards to protest the game.

Cleveland Indians' backed up rookie Dale Hoskins' seven-hit pitching with four home runs as they defeated Washington Senators, 9-5, in the only other game scheduled.

Gene Tunney, Family Visit City

Gene Tunney, one of ring's immortals and the only heavyweight boxer to retire from the ring undefeated, arrived here with his family Wednesday for a one-day stop-over before moving on to Vancouver and points east. Famous for his "long count" bout with Jack Dempsey, Tunney still looks in fine shape and is now a successful businessman in Stanford, Conn. Tunney is caught by cameraman Jim Ryan in his hotel room penning a few lines to friends about "the wonderful scenery Victoria has to offer."

Gene Still Looks Like Champion

BY IAN GLENDAY

Gene Tunney, the man who retired from the ring as undefeated heavyweight champion of the world but who became more famous because of his famous "long count" with Jack Dempsey, still looks every bit the champion he was. One of the ring's immortals, Tunney arrived in Victoria with his family Wednesday afternoon for a brief tour of the city before moving on to Vancouver and Banff this morning. With him were his wife, the former Mary Lauder, and his two children, Jonathan, age 17, and Joan, age 14. "Just taking things easy," Tunney said from the comforts of his hotel room. "This trip will probably be the last time I'll be able to travel with the children and I want to show them a bit of the country," he said.

STILL IN SHAPE

Tunney, who weighs 212 pounds today—about 20 pounds over his fighting weight—still looks in magnificent shape. Big, broad-shouldered and with his face unmarked, the 55-year-old ex-champion is one of the few who have retired while still in the peak of condition and with what boxers term, "your senses."

He now resides with his family in Stanford, Conn., and is a member of the board of directors of eight large industries and owns a large construction firm which recently completed a 350-home project.

QUIT IN 1928

Tunney's last bout was in 1928, when he defeated Tom Heenan of New Zealand to retain his championship. He then decided to "call it quits." Since then, he has put his ring earnings to good use and with the prestige he gained during a professional career which started in 1917 and was interrupted by a stint in the U.S.

U.S., British Golfers Dominate Canadian Amateur; Fleming Out

The Canadian amateur golf championship struggle under a double-barreled shake-down Wednesday and the faint flicker of hope Canada held for winning the event was all but extinguished by American and British swingers.

Montreal's Kanawaki Golf Club, Britain's 10-man Walker Cup team had six men left in the chase, the United States had seven, and Canada's representation was reduced to a meagre three.

The biggest jolt suffered by Canada was when Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener, Ont., was eliminated in the fourth round Wednesday afternoon by Jimmy Wilson of Scotland, 3 and 2.

CARE ADVANCES

Joe Carr, British amateur champion, moved along through the day's two rounds although he was given a rough passage in the afternoon round before he downed Gordon Taylor, Canada's amateur champion 21 years ago and one of Kanawaki's top players, one up.

Canada's final hopes now rest on two former Canadian junior champions—Bob Hall of Montreal and Doug Silverberg of Red Deer, Alta.—and one former Quebec provincial champion and national junior runner-up, Don Doe of Granby, Que.

At least one will disappear in today's fifth round which brings together Hall and Doe.

FLEMING WINS, LOSES

British Columbia's two remaining hopes, although putting up good scraps, dropped out of contention. Bob Fleming of Victoria won his third round match in the morning by edging Mike Darling of Montreal, one up. However, the B.C. amateur champion lost to Don Cherry of Wichita Falls, Tex., in a fourth-round match, one up.

Cherry, the only member of the U.S. Walker Cup team competing in the event, had whipped Ted Homeniuk of Saskatchewan, 6-5, in the third round and was forced to birdie the last two holes against Fleming to come out on top.

The other B.C. golfer to drop out was Dick Moore, who lost to Gordon Hall of Kitchener, one up, in the third round. Ball had pulled the biggest upset of the tourney to date by eliminating Nick Wenlock of Ontario Tuesday.

The four Britons who were eliminated were Art Perowne, G. H. Micklem, British closed champion, Ronnie White, one of the team's topnotchers, and J. D. A. Langley.

Three Americans put on the elimination pressure against the British, and the fourth junior title in 1949, got past Bob Knowles of Brookline, Mass., one up, in the morning round and then handed out a 6 and 5 setback in the afternoon to Gordie Pitts of Quincy, Mass.

Doe, who won the Quebec junior title in 1939, had an easy time with T. G. McCarthy of Montreal in the morning round with a 5 and 4 win. He then went on to defeat Phil Farley of Toronto, long one of Canada's outstanding amateur golfers, one up after trailing by two holes at the turn.

Silverberg won both his matches by 4 and 3, defeating Brian McGulgan of Montreal and K. Alexander of Calgary.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—Patricia O'Sullivan, the cautious hotel clerk from Southern Pines, N.C., took away little Barbara Romack's pass key to the national women's amateur golf championship Wednesday by upsetting the Sacramento, Calif., girl, 3 and 2, in a fourth-round match.

Miss O'Sullivan was joined shortly afterwards in the round of 16 by such standout contenders as Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Tex., and Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta.

Miss Riley, a 25-year-old law secretary, was never headed as she expelled Ann Quast, the 15-year-old links prodigy from Everett, Wash., 3 and 2.

The 20-year-old Miss Romack, a heavy gallery favorite, was a prime choice for the championship which Honolulu's Jacqueline Pung won last year before turning pro.

Cherry, the only member of the U.S. Walker Cup team competing in the event, had gested that park improvements made by the club be applied against rent.

The rental figure is based partly on attendance which hasn't been too good. Simenson asked for an official accounting. He said the club was sent two letters asking for a report on July attendance but that the city got no reply.

The Chiefs and their home schedule September 3, 4, 5 and 6 against Yakima.

Frank Dasso, general manager of the eighth-place Chiefs, said he'll show up and try to work something out. He suggested that park improvements made by the club be applied against rent.

Oil Price Boost Not Fully Explained

BY HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

When the Imperial Oil Company raised the price of gasoline and other fuel oils by half a cent a gallon on July 22, it did so because of the unfavorable rate of dollar exchange which had developed since the previous price rise in March.

result of that that it seems to me unlikely that any great relief is in sight for the thousands of householders in this area who own expensive furnaces and other oil-fired equipment.

These are the people who in the immediate post-war period when fuel was scarce, had to make do with kerosene.

British Columbia is nearly self-sufficient in its production of gasoline but it has to import about half of its heavy oils.

AN ANSWER NOT KNOWN

Mr. White said he did not know the answer to this problem but it would appear to the layman that the trouble lies in the fact that modern methods of refining gasoline are not yet fully developed.

To those who might claim this is unethical procedure the oil companies can say that the development took them by surprise.

Mr. White agreed that increased availability of natural gas might do something to restore the equilibrium.

But meantime the chance of a gas shortage is a real possibility.

On July 22, when the half-cent increase was imposed, the Canadian dollar was at a premium of 29 3/4 cents. On March 21 the Canadian dollar was at a premium of 15 1/2 cents.

If Imperial Oil is going to be consistent then it should cut its price again by half a cent a gallon, for the Canadian dollar is now back again at a 15 1/2 premium—just as it was on March 21.

If this concession is not made, the public can hardly be expected to believe that the July increase was due to the one Imperial Oil Company of fuel.

RELIEF IN DOUBT

The writer had an opportunity this week of discussing the oil price structure with Jack White, president of Imperial Oil Company and as a fuel

For many fixed income householders the fuel price increase of over 100 per cent has created grave financial problems. Some are being forced to sell their expensive equipment and others are holding back their thermostats in an effort to economize.

Mr. White expressed sympathy for these people, but pointed out that since 1946 the demand for middle distillate oils and heavy fuels had grown out of all proportion to the increased demand for gasoline.

Now they are unable to feed the monster of their own creation. Increased demand has raised the price of fuel to such an extent that the consumer will either have to cut down or turn to some other form of fuel.

Group movements, however, held within a third of an index point following the sharp declines of the last two days.

Renewed interest in uranium and New Brunswick base metals boosted volume for the day to 452,000 shares.

New Larder U featured a rising group of Bathurst base metals, moving almost 450,000 shares for a 25-cent gain.

The irregular western oil list had Central Explorers, Royalite, Pacific, Canadian Atlantic and Bailey Seiburn down between 10 and 25 cents. Calgary and Edmonton, Anglo-Canadian and Home Oil steadied.

Hollinger and Kerr Addison brightened in the senior golds section but Giant Yellowknife and Lake Shore dipped.

For the day the market was mixed, with a slight bias to the bearish side. The 30 Industrials closed at 236.51, down 0.94 points from the previous day's close.

The 20 Rails closed at 99.47, down 0.24 points. The 15 Utilities closed at 56.38, down 0.44 points. The 65 Stocks closed at 103.94, down 0.25 points.

Grain Prices

WINNIPEG (CP)—Grain prices were mostly lower, reflecting declines in United States markets. Flax showed the best tone.

There was some export demand for some grains with export buying of barley in connection with small sales to the United Kingdom. Some industrial support of flax and domestic activity. Trading was quiet.

Papers Stay Firm

MONTREAL (CP)—Slow trading produced an even mixture of declines and advances.

Papers and miscellaneous in distals showed strength while senior oils and utilities were weak.

Steel carriers, banks, senior metals and beverages were irregular.

Objection Repelled In Pipeline Hearing

CALGARY (CP)—Mid-Continent Pipeline Ltd. will be allowed to transport oil from Alberta to the coast, the Alberta Pipeline Commission has decided.

The commission's decision was made after a hearing on objections to the proposed pipeline. The commission found that the objections were not well founded.

Logs Will 'Fly' Over Fraser

QUEENSLAND (CP)—A British Columbia logging company is introducing a method of transporting logs which is unique in the province. Two aerial tramways across the Fraser river are to be put into operation.

The new system was introduced after an experiment with river booming from the man agency alone proved too costly and hazardous.

London Stock Prices

LONDON (Reuters)—The London stock exchange displayed a generally better tone. Best showing was by British government stocks though trading was very light.

German issues continued to interest the foreign group were firmer. Polish issues came off after and fell back slightly. Japanese were inclined to sag.

Softens at Close

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market softened at the close under the weight of neglect.

There was no selling pressure but no interest to support an advance either, and the list drifted off at the close.

During most of the session prices were slightly above the midline level to which they fell in the previous two sessions of heavy decline. Volume ran about 500,000 shares behind yesterday.

Object of that that it seems to me unlikely that any great relief is in sight for the thousands of householders in this area who own expensive furnaces and other oil-fired equipment.

These are the people who in the immediate post-war period when fuel was scarce, had to make do with kerosene.

British Columbia is nearly self-sufficient in its production of gasoline but it has to import about half of its heavy oils.

AN ANSWER NOT KNOWN

Mr. White said he did not know the answer to this problem but it would appear to the layman that the trouble lies in the fact that modern methods of refining gasoline are not yet fully developed.

To those who might claim this is unethical procedure the oil companies can say that the development took them by surprise.

Mr. White agreed that increased availability of natural gas might do something to restore the equilibrium.

But meantime the chance of a gas shortage is a real possibility.

Objection Repelled In Pipeline Hearing

CALGARY (CP)—Mid-Continent Pipeline Ltd. will be allowed to transport oil from Alberta to the coast, the Alberta Pipeline Commission has decided.

The commission's decision was made after a hearing on objections to the proposed pipeline. The commission found that the objections were not well founded.

Logs Will 'Fly' Over Fraser

QUEENSLAND (CP)—A British Columbia logging company is introducing a method of transporting logs which is unique in the province. Two aerial tramways across the Fraser river are to be put into operation.

The new system was introduced after an experiment with river booming from the man agency alone proved too costly and hazardous.

London Stock Prices

LONDON (Reuters)—The London stock exchange displayed a generally better tone. Best showing was by British government stocks though trading was very light.

German issues continued to interest the foreign group were firmer. Polish issues came off after and fell back slightly. Japanese were inclined to sag.

Softens at Close

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market softened at the close under the weight of neglect.

There was no selling pressure but no interest to support an advance either, and the list drifted off at the close.

During most of the session prices were slightly above the midline level to which they fell in the previous two sessions of heavy decline. Volume ran about 500,000 shares behind yesterday.

She was given in marriage by her father.

Describing Visit to Japan For Daily Colonist Readers

Leaving Victoria Thursday evening on her way to the Orient where she will spend 10 weeks is Miss Joey Wilson, well known member of the Victoria Public Library staff. During her travels she will write a number of impressions for the Daily Colonist.

MISS JOEY WILSON, a guest at Canadian Embassy.

About six weeks of Miss Wilson's trip will be spent in Japan where she will be the guest of Hon. R. W. Maxwell, Canadian ambassador and Mrs. Maxwell at the embassy in Tokyo. While making her headquarters at the embassy she will take an island sea trip among the Japanese islands.

She is particularly interested in visiting Hiroshima and seeing for herself the results of the atomic explosion at Hiroshima. She will visit the United States hospital unit centre of the search, where records have been kept of each baby born since the atomic explosion of 1945. "Just going to sleep" is the way Miss Wilson describes other aspects of her travels. She will also visit the Japanese library in Tokyo.

Miss Wilson will spend a week in Hong Kong, a fortnight in the Philippines, and a week in Hawaii where she will also spend a week. She will travel to the Orient by way of San Francisco where she will stay for some days before sailing around the Pacific.

Hunter Ordered Out When Best Dog Killed

Cougar Terror Grips Ucluelet-Tofino District

BY BRIAN LOUGHNAN

An invasion of cougars in the Ucluelet-Tofino area brought an anguished plea for help from worried residents Wednesday night as a government hunter was ordered out of the district.

Hunter Jim Dewar was ordered out after his best dog, Spot, was killed by a large feline male cougar.

The school board of the area sent a wire to Jack Squire, M.L.A. at Port Alberni, Wednesday night, protesting the removal of Dewar and asking that another hunter be sent in.

"The situation here is very bad," Thomas McDonald, school operator near Ucluelet, told The Daily Colonist Wednesday night.

He accompanied Dewar "to show him the country" when the government predator hunter killed the four cougars.

"Another one, this big one that killed Dewar's best dog, was seen in front of my house Tuesday night," Mr. McDonald said.

Dewar was called in at the request of Ucluelet residents who spotted cougars on several occasions.

NEVER THIS BAD

"I've lived here in the bush of my life and I've never seen it this bad for cougars," Mr. McDonald said.

"We are very worried. There is a stretch of more than 20 miles between here and Tofino and we are thinking of the school children who have to wait for the bus every day at present along that road."

The big male cougar still at large is not afraid of dogs, according to Mr. McDonald.

The big cat killed Dewar's

Government predator hunter Jim Dewar was ordered out of the Ucluelet area on Wednesday after killing four cougars and losing his best dog, Spot, to a fifth cat, which is still roaming the district.

chewed before a companion could kill the beast with a hatchet.

Indians are Indian women were severely injured by a cougar near Ucluelet 30 miles north of Campbell River. She was saved by a logging camp owner who heard her screams and rushed to her aid.

Skate Haines later shot and killed the cougar. The woman was flown to a Port Alberni hospital.

A small Indian boy was killed by a cougar near Kuperuk when he ventured too near to the cat's meat cache.

Last cougar scare for Victoria came in July 1951, when a cougar was seen and hunted near High Quadra.

Within two miles of city hall a huge cat was stalked by game warden Joseph James. A cougar hound was brought in but lost the scent on the tracks of closely tracked cat and the cougar escaped.

Defense Heads Unaware Of Rocket Aid Request

OTTAWA (CP) Defense officials expressed surprise at official view in Australia was a Canberra report Wednesday that while Britain and Australia were paying for the cost of the Canberra, all Commonwealth nations were benefiting.

For several weeks Canada has not participated directly in guided missile or rocket research at the Australian range.

Dr. M. S. Sandhu, chairman of the defense research board, said no suggestion had ever been made to him that Canada should make a financial contribution to research on guided missiles and rockets at the range.

Other officials of the board and the defense department said Canada has its own guided missile and rocket program. Both Britain and Australia, they said, would benefit from Canadian progress in this research.

Firm friends at first sight were this kitten and Brenda Hatch, 2952 Gosworth, during the SPCA "open house" on Wednesday. An official of the SPCA said every kitten in the shelter could have a choice of several homes if the visiting children had been allowed to adopt them.

Malcolm Harvey, 1110 Pembroke, and a Pekingese boarder at the SPCA shelter had a few minutes' fun together during the public inspection of the SPCA shelter on Wednesday. Malcolm was one of a large crowd of visitors to pay a call.

'Pixies' on Prowl Inside Locked Car

Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Black was a box containing a lady's 2560 Graham, are still mystified new suit. When they returned to the car Tuesday night, they found the blanket neatly rolled up on the floor. The Blacks left the car the suit box open and the suit parked on View above Quadra, laid out on the seat. While they went to a movie. On the back seat, under a blanket.

LITTLE NERVOUS

Mr. Black said both he and his wife were more than surprised and somewhat nervous about getting in a car that harbored "spooks."

Nothing had been taken from the car by the visitor, just an examination of the suit.

Sales Gain On Calendar

Officials of the Esquimalt Lions Club reported Wednesday night they have sold 755 orders for the community birthday calendars.

Objective is 1,000 they said and a determined drive will be made by members during the week of September 1 to 8 to reach that total.

At a meeting Tuesday club officials decided to extend the order deadline. Orders will be taken until October 1 and canvassing will continue until September 10.

Laing Urges Thorough Public Inquiry Into Whatshan Power Plant Mud Slides

VANCOUVER (CP) Liberal leader, Arthur Laing, asked Wednesday for a full-scale public inquiry into the Whatshan power plant mud slides which heavily damaged the new plant of the B.C. Power Commission.

The Social Credit government has announced that an intensive study of the situation will be made by an engineering firm from Niagara Falls.

It is in the public interest that this report be a public document," said Mr. Laing.

He also suggested that costs of restoring the plant be borne by the whole province.

HIT BY TWO SLIDES

The Whatshan plant was hit by two mud slides in one week, causing extremely heavy damage.

At Armstrong, a meeting of representatives from Kamloops, Salmon Arm, Sicamous, Ender-by Vernon and Lumby considered the problem at a meeting Tuesday night. Strong action was advocated by all sections of the North Okanagan and Kamloops districts.

SERIOUS CONCERN

Packaginghouse and lumber in government "in the strongest terms" and urged that emergency power be made available as quickly as possible. Fears an adequate alternative supply were expressed that the Martin of power, regardless of the exposed apple crop would face pence involved."

Customs Post Announced

The son of a Victoria couple, Rev. and Mrs. Frank Chilton of 1125 Leonard Street, has been named the first customs and excise officer at Kitimat.

He is John Gordon Chilton of 380 St. Andrews Street, Nanaimo.

It is the first customs office established in recent years with the status of a full port and is due to the tremendous growth in Kitimat and the surrounding area.

Mr. Chilton was chosen following competitions in B.C. and the Yukon. He will begin his duties September 1.

The United States party of the modern States held its first convention at Philadelphia in 1876.

Poor Little Hill!

You're looking at a very discouraged hill!

Ever since that ribbon of paving outlined it, it has been a challenge to motor cars.

For miles and miles it winds up the side of a mountain; and it has sharp curves, and steep grades that spring out of the curves so a driver can't get a start.

Half-way up, there's a watering place—but there so drivers can stop and refill their radiators.

Yes—it has been quite a hill. But not any more! The driver of the car in the picture took off at the base and sailed right up to the top—and never gave it a thought.

You see, he's driving a 1953 Cadillac—with its great new high compression 210-horsepower engine—and its vastly improved Hydra-Matic Drive.

We heard recently of two men who drove from Florida to Windsor, Ontario—in a 1953 Cadillac.

The driver of the car had made this trip before—and as they left Knoxville he said to his passenger: "Man, are we going to find a hill between here and Lexington?"

After an hour or so, the passenger said: "Where is the hill?"

And the driver said: "Just wait!"

So they waited—and presently they saw a sign which read: "Lexington!"

The driver was dumbfounded. "I can't understand it!" he said. "There used to be a hill there—a big one! I know from experience."

Naturally, this great car gives you more than the ability to master hills.

When you float along with a tremendous reserve like this, you have the smoothest, quietest, easiest ride it's possible to imagine.

It gives you confidence, too—and helps you to relax—for you know you have the power for any emergency that may arise.

It makes the whole car a symphony in motion. In fact, the ride is so smooth and soothing that, not infrequently, passengers sleep as they ride.

Come in and try it for yourself. The car is waiting—and it's an experience you ought not to forego.

Europe's Summer Greatly Variable

LONDON (NANA) — The almost three months of hot sunny weather, and that can be almost tropical in Sweden.

LOTS OF WIND

Since then, the summers have mostly produced a round of low temperatures. This year the summer has been about half and half, with several days at a stretch warm and sunny, and then a succession of cooler, windier and rainier days. Swedes might say that summer comes only once in six years.

COPENHAGEN (NANA) — The Danish word over (un-weather) describes the kind of thing the Danes have to endure most of the year—including the summer—this summer especially.

It embraces high winds, cloudbursts, thunder and cold. But from June 21 to July 4 Denmark had the longest spell of good weather for many years; warm (12 hours of sunshine daily), no wind, no rain.

Apart from this there have been only occasional spells of ophidivorous weather when you can be out of doors without discomfort.

Otherwise July was normal, with around 250 hours of sunshine, an average temperature of 61, and steady winds.

Did someone say the sunny continent?

GENEVA (NANA) — Switzerland will remember this summer as one of the most unsettled for many years.

Brief spells of sunshine always seem to be followed by heavy storms, and the thermometer has only just reached 80 degrees—even in the plains.

In the mountain resorts the unhappy holiday makers are compelled to swathe themselves in wool and tapeats to keep warm. They spend more time in bars than on excursions.

The only consolation is that the wet weather dampens the enthusiasm of would-be climbers, and there have been fewer mountaineering accidents.

Cards which are bought from the government and which contain stamps printed on them are called postal cards—private or unofficial cards admitted to the mail on the affixing of a postage stamp are called post-cards.

From now until October (except for an occasional thunderstorm) it will be sunshine, sunshine, sunshine all the way.

STOCKHOLM (NANA) — In Sweden "summer" happened on Thursday is the usual way of remembering the sunshine.

This is, of course, an exaggeration, but there lies a good deal of truth in it.

The last real, persistent summer was in 1947, which gave

Huge Rats on Island Drive Out Frenchman

NEW YORK (NANA) — In the opening paragraphs of one of the adventures of Sherlock Holmes, the affair of the "Giant Rat of Sumatra," an account for which the world is not yet prepared, is mentioned. The chronicle never was written down, and no explanation has been forthcoming until now.

A Frenchman who has returned to Tahiti from Nengonengo atoll in the Tuamotu archipelago, French Oceania, in the South Pacific, has brought back a hair-raising tale.

Maurice Calamy—that's the name of the voyager—first took up residence on Nengonengo several months ago with some laborers.

The whole island was alive with rats, ravenously hungry, infinitely thorough in their

Secrets of Forgotten World

Fabulous Inca City of Vilcabamba Seen by Expedition as Prize Plum

In association with the American Geographical Society, Victor von Hagen, one of the world's leading experts on South American history and exploration, is directing an expedition to the Inca Empire.

BY VICTOR VON HAGEN
CUZCO, Peru (NANA) —

Spanish Conquistadores in 1533, we would have had no difficulty in finding our way along the great stone roads. To this day a veritable labyrinth of roads leads out of Cuzco.

But 400 years of change have erased almost all trace of the original roads as they entered the great square of Cuzco. Most of them lie buried under layers of other roads, the Huatanay River which the Incas had canalized, so it would not flood their sacred city, is now completely hidden — and with it the roads.

KNOW MAIN DIRECTION

Yet we do know the general direction of the roads — for the Spaniards wrote glowingly of them — and in some instances very particular directions; so, in conference, we decided to take one direction at a time. We settled on the Anti-Suyo road. This led into the north-west upper Amazon.

So, on a typical sunlit Cuzco day, after awaiting the arrival of a new member, Hendrik Blohm, 20, a student volunteer from Harvard, our gleaming red power wagon, accompanied by our smaller pickup truck (transformed now into something looking like a 19th century conestoga wagon), went slowly past Inca walls and mounted the Anti-Suyo road. On the summit of the 1,000-foot high hill we went past the fortress of Sacsayhuaman.

The fortress of Cuzco, large enough to hold its entire 100,000 population at one time in case of attack, is the most gigantic structure ever built by any prehistoric people. It took 90 years to construct and, at one time, as many as 10,000 Indians were engaged in its construction; it is a third of a mile long, built of stones weighing as much as two tons each, all rolled into place, cut and set by human hand.

This was the Anti-Suyo road. We passed further fortresses, all strategically placed to defend this hill or that, so many defenses that we soon realized that no matter how secure the Incas seemed in the heart of the Andes, they improved upon their natural defenses with a series of astounding fortresses, they were "Machinot" minded.

GLIMPSES OF ROAD

Here and there, across the plains, we gained glimpses of the Inca road, then we circled the bare hills, dropped into a becomes a gorge and the precipitous granite hills are filled with jungle trees, the road is lost. We believe it never entered the gorge but changed its course, went up the side of the river valley and traveled toward the famous ruin of taining a neo-Inca state, 40 years after the conquest.

The Spaniards never found that city. We are certain that a road once connected this Vilcabamba with the royal road of the Incas in the highlands. That is what we are searching for now — and if we find, in the process, the last capital of the

TRAVEL BELOW

From where we were below, in the thundering cascades of the river, we could see the ramparts of Machu Picchu, perched 2,000 feet high on the saddle of a mountain spur. That lost Inca city, discovered by Dr. Hiram Bingham in 1911 — and now the hegira of thousands of tourists annually — is connected by a series of Inca roads, but high up, out of the reach of water.

Fifty miles below Machu Picchu, where the region is densely tropical, we picked up the Inca road again, for we had turned north in search of fabled Vilcabamba. Our vehicles we had left behind, we were now bound to mule travel.

In a wild land, set on end, where the Vilcabamba River has cut through the mountains as if they were severed by a huge knife, we followed the remains of the Inca road. Hiram Bingham, throughout the years between 1909 and 1915, searched for this Vilcabamba, a lost Inca city, deep in the forest. Here lived the rebellious Inca Tupac Amaru, maincabamba, the last capital of the Inca, that will be an extra archaeological plum.

Polio Delays School

EDMONTON (CP)—All Alberta schools were ordered Wednesday to remain closed two weeks beyond the normal September 1 opening as Western Canada's polio epidemic claimed an ever-increasing toll among children and adults.

So far this year the disease has claimed 70 lives in the four Western provinces—28 in Manitoba, 22 in Saskatchewan, 13 in Alberta and seven in British Columbia.

There have been 2,027 cases, more than half of them in Manitoba, experiencing its worst polio year on record. Manitoba reports 1,098 cases, Saskatchewan 345, Alberta 301 and B.C. 283.

In its previous record year, 1941, Manitoba listed 1,011 cases and 20 deaths. Last year was the worst for the other three provinces, when Saskatchewan had 1,223 cases and 90 deaths, Alberta 743 cases and 79 deaths, and B.C. 595 cases and 38 deaths.

Schools in Greater Winnipeg and in three rural Manitoba areas will remain closed until September 14. All the others will open August 31 as scheduled.

Saskatchewan school openings have been left to the discretion of local authorities. So far there have been no reports of any delays. Schools are scheduled to open September 1 and 2. In British Columbia, classes will start at the usual date, September 8.

Seven Killed As Train Smashes Car

TRURO, N.S. (CP)—Six members of one family and a niece of the parents were killed Wednesday night when a Dominion Atlantic Railway train sliced into their car on a rain-saturated level crossing. The victims were tentatively identified as Mr. and Mrs. Murray Burgess of nearby Beaverbrook, N.S., their four children and their niece, Margaret Taylor, about 15.

'Criminals' May Be Freed

FREEDOM VILLAGE, Korea (UP)—The Communists apparently are getting ready to free numerous American prisoners, including officers up to the rank of colonel, who were sentenced to prison on trumped-up charges, repatriated soldiers reported Wednesday.

Blasted Rock . . . Did This to House

Frank Beaumont, 3192 Highview, struggles to hold up one of four large rocks that crashed through his roof yesterday during blasting for water main excavation on summit between Tolmie Avenue and Cook Street. Workmen were blasting about 100 yards from the house and blast showered large area around Beaumont home with pieces of jagged rock.

Blast Damage Hits New Area

Residents in the North Cook Street area are the latest to come under bombardment with blasted rock.

Seven persons, including four children, escaped serious injury Wednesday afternoon when a blast showered the house in which they had taken refuge with jagged pieces of rock.

Workmen from the G. W. Ledingham construction company, which is excavating for a new water main along Tolmie Avenue and up over the summit between the end of Tolmie and Cook, warned residents in the district to take cover, as they were about to begin blasting.

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Beaumont, their two children, Ruth and David, a young playmate, Susan Derricks, and Mrs. A. Eburne and her two-year-old son all took refuge in the Beaumont home at 3192 Highview to wait out the explosion.

It had become a regular procedure for them to take refuge in the house during the recent weeks of blasting.

When the blast came it seemed much stronger than usual, and a moment later the house trembled as the shower of "shrapnel" landed on the roof, just above their heads.

The blast hurled four boulders, weighing in excess of 50 pounds each, approximately 100 yards onto the Beaumonts' roof. Small pieces of jagged rock showered the entire area and some pieces reached Mrs. Beaumont, more than 150 yards away.

Four large holes were punched in the stricken house as the rocks plunged through. Fortunately for those inside the attic floor stopped the pieces.

One big boulder struck the east eaves of the house, smashing them and carrying away the rain trough.

The children's sand box, in which the children had been playing before the warning, was covered with particles of rock, plaster and branches torn off a nearby oak tree.

A glass light shade was knocked off the ceiling in the kitchen, where the occupants had gathered, and ornaments on the kitchen walls were flung to the floor. Several glass dishes in a basement apartment were broken.

After the blast, workmen rushed down to the house to see if anyone was hurt. They couldn't understand why it had been so severe.

Mrs. Beaumont stands where she and several children took shelter during the blast—immediately under shattered roof where large boulder crashed through. Attic floor under the roof broke the impact of the rock and saved the group from injury.

Seamen Call Strike Ballot; CPR's Coast Ships Unaffected

MONTREAL (CP)—More than 8,000 Canadian seamen, members of the Seafarers' International Union (AFL-TCU), Wednesday night called for a nationwide strike vote following rejection of what they termed an "entirely unsatisfactory" arbitration award.

Hal C. Banks, international vice-president of the union, in a statement from SIU headquarters in Montreal, said:

"The finding of the board—a ship-owners' board—is entirely unsatisfactory and our members are united in taking immediate action as provided by law to protest this unfair decision."

"The members are calling for an immediate strike vote."

The statement said reports confirming the decision of SIU's membership had been received at headquarters. They came from port agents John Newton, Victoria; Norman Cunningham, Vancouver; Edward Morin, Fort William; and from Thorold, Ont., Toronto, Saint John, N.B., and Halifax.

Mr. Banks said the strike could start Monday and would affect most Canadian shipping. He said ships on the West Coast operated by Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways and Union Steamships would not be affected as the union and companies have already come to terms.

He said the union and companies signed a contract several months ago, covering vessels on the West Coast and the Gulf of Mexico.

The air force rescue arm, which has most of its 20 search planes based at Prince George, B.C., reported fog and rain grounded them most of the day.

As the search for the New Mexico and Texas oil man, his wife, two daughters and 17-year-old Patrick Hibben continued through the ninth day, one more fresh clue was discounted by the search leaders.

It was a report from a woman north of Hazelton, B.C., that she heard a plane twice on the night of August 17, when the Hall plane vanished on a southward flight, and that there was an explosion and a room-illuminating flash. The RCAF said a check of the area led searchers to believe a heavy thunderstorm was in the area at the time accounted for the report.

Winnipeg reports said low ceilings and bad visibility Wednesday grounded all of the 14 aircraft at Churchill searching for a missing Lancaster bomber which disappeared with its eight-man crew Saturday night on a flight from Rockcliffe, Ont., to Churchill.

At Edmonton, the RCAF reported Wednesday night that bush pilot Herman Peterson of Albert Bay, B.C., has been found and is in good condition. Peterson had been missing since Thursday when he took off in his plane for Stewart, B.C.

An RCAF spokesman said Peterson walked into a weather station at Dease Lake Wednesday after a trek of 75 miles from Lower Iskut Lake. There were no other details.

Peterson, alone in his single-engine plane, left Telegraph Creek, 100 miles southwest of Whitehorse, for Stewart, 120 miles north of Prince Rupert.

He was presumed that all the work was done by the Senate's carpenter, Bill West, on his own time and with materials supplied by Larose. However, there are reports that West worked on the boat during normal working hours.

That the matter is more than a passing incident is indicated by Mr. Moyer's declared intention to have the Senate internal economy committee appraised. However, this committee meets in camera and it is therefore doubtful if its report will ever be made public. In the circumstances, a member of the House of Commons is going to bring the matter up in the Commons as soon as the new parliament convenes in November.

One Killed, Two Hurt

Last Man on Rope Holds Firm To Save Rest of Climbers

KARACHI (AP)—Death and injuries have foiled a nine-man American mountain-climbing expedition in its attempt to scale Mount Godwin Austen (K2), the world's highest unconquered peak.

Delayed reports from Kashmir said Wednesday that Arthur K. Gilkey, 26-year-old New York geologist, gave his life in the attempt. Gilkey was killed when the party, roped together, fell more than 100 feet over a razor-edged ridge at a height of 25,000 feet. Others would have been killed, too, but for the last man on the rope. He was able to anchor the line by throwing his full weight against a ledge, enabling the others to be pulled to safety.

Two members of the expedition, descending the treacherous, blizzard-swept 28,250-foot peak, were injured seriously and are suffering from frostbite. They are identified as Robert W. Craig, a ski instructor from Colorado Springs, and physicist George R. Bell of Los Alamos, N.M. The expedition, headed by Dr. Charles Houston of Exeter, N.H., was reported making its way slowly to the Kashmir town of Skardu, from which it set out June 19. The men are scheduled to reach Skardu Monday.

It was the sixth expedition to be defeated by Godwin Austen, second-highest summit in the world. Everest, the highest at more than 29,000 feet, was conquered last May by a British expedition. Godwin Austen stands in the western Himalayas at the edge of the central Asian Karakoram Range. It is named after the eldest son of Robert Godwin Austen, English geologist. The name K2 developed from the peak's topographical reference number in early charts.

Dr. Houston, 42, who calls himself a "small-town doctor," has led attempts on K2 twice before, a major expedition in 1938 and an earlier reconnaissance survey.

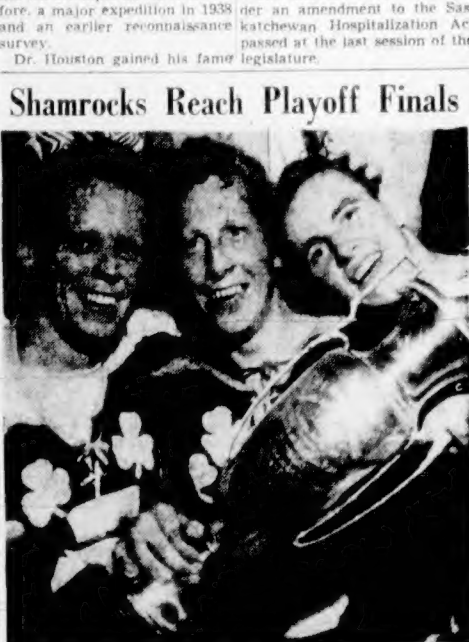

Dr. Houston gained his fame in the individual adult hospital-care tax for 1954 from $10 to $15 and a boost in the family maximum tax from $30 to $40 were announced Tuesday by Health Minister J. T. Bentley. The tax for dependents under 18 years of age will remain unchanged at $5 each.

The increases, first general boost in five years, were dictated by a "tremendous rise in the cost of providing hospital care," said Mr. Bentley. There would be no change in the benefits provided under the provincial hospital plan.

One other change announced was increase in the minimum down payment from $15 to $20, with no change in the term of six months allowed for payment of the balance of the tax.

The increases were made under an amendment to the Saskatchewan Hospitalization Act passed at the last session of the legislature.

Shamrocks Reach Playoff Finals

Before the biggest crowd ever to see a lacrosse game in Victoria, the Shamrocks last night defeated Nanaimo Native Sons, 11-4, to enter the finals against Vancouver Pilgrims. Happy line, above, is centred here and on the floor by Whitey Severson, who starred with an amazing six assists and one goal. At left is Archie Browning and, at right, Al Gill. This trio made up the first attacking unit last night as Rookie Gill filled in for ailing Larry Booth. Severson is holding the Maitland Trophy, which was presented to him last night as the most valuable player to a team in the Inter-City Lacrosse League. ## Senate Boatbuilding Inquiry May Look Into Other Private Jobs

BY TOM GREEN
Colonist Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Inquiry into the assembly of a boat by the Senate's carpenter on the Senate side of the Parliament Buildings may extend into an inquiry into reports that Senate employees have done work on other private jobs for Senate officials.

L. Clare Moyer, clerk of the Senate, who ordered the boat out of the Senate building after inquiries had been raised, said Wednesday that he had heard reports when he came back from his holidays about a boat being built in the Senate building.

Rodolphe Larose, assistant clerk of the Senate and senior official in Mr. Moyer's absence, admitted that the assembly, which began on the top floor of the Senate building and ended in the basement corridor, a few yards from the entrance to the building, was being done for him. Mr. Moyer ordered the boat out of the Senate building and it was hurriedly loaded on a truck and taken away through a seldom-used side door. Mr. Larose went on holidays at the same time.

However, other Senate officials say the boat definitely was only removed from the Senate building Monday morning, and Mr. Moyer has been back from his holidays for a week.

Mr. Moyer said Wednesday
